SYSTEMATIC ACTIVITIES OF CHINESE GUERILLAS IN MANY PROVINCES DESTROY JAPANESE MOVES

Service On Important Railways Interrupted

Troop Train Derailed

Shanghai, June 24.

Train service between Shanghai and Kashing on the Shanghai-Hankow Railway has been interrupted for the past few days as the result of activities of Chinese guerillas in the region, according to a Chinese report today.

Fighting is expected between Japanese troops and the guerillas, and large numbers of refugees are coming to Shanghai from Hankow and regions, via Soochow.

According to a Chinese traveller who has just arrived here from Nanzhang, over 300 well-armed guerillas engaged 140 Japanese soldiers along the Soochow Creek last Saturday. The Japanese were driven back to Shanghai, leaving behind a number of dead.

ACTIVE IN TSINAN

Chinese guerillas in Tsunming Island have become very active of late, the report adds.

The Chinese are also reported to be active in the suburbs of Tsinan (Shantung) where more than 700 Japanese are stationed. Because of the increasing activities of these mobile bands, traffic along the Tientsin-Pukow Railway and the Kiaochi Railway has been interrupted near Tsinan, it is stated.

HOPEI DIFFICULTIES

Japanese troops in Hopei Province are facing the same situation as in Shansi, as the Chinese forces have in recent weeks been strengthened.

Not only the highways, but the Peiping-Hankow, the Peiping-Suiyuan and the Tientsin-Pukow Railways cannot be well protected by Japanese troops. Large sections of rails on the Peiping-Suiyuan line are reported to have been removed by guerillas during the past week, interfering with the regular train service.

Political work carried out by the 8th Route Army is said to be bringing results in Chulu, Yih-sien, Hsien and 15 other districts in Hopei, which are reported to be dominated by Chinese forces.

TRAIN DERAILLED

On Monday, a Japanese military train fully loaded with war supplies was derailed near Tangkwantung, 40 miles south of Tientsin, as sections of the rails had been removed by Chinese guerillas.

The guerillas are reported to have reached Kupelkou, according to sources from Hankow. A number of bridges along the newly-completed Peiping-Jehol Railway have been destroyed near the Great Wall, it is declared.

In Paoingfu, the guerillas are reported to be also active, stopping Japanese trains from sending railway supplies to Honan. (Reuter).

HAMMOND 210 NOT OUT IN THE SECOND TEST MATCH

England Starts Badly But Stages Grand Recovery

KING PAYS SURPRISE VISIT TO LORD'S

England again won the toss in the Second Test Match against Australia which opened at Lord's yesterday and once more Wally Hammond elected to bat. The position, at the close of play, was highly satisfactory for the home team as they had put together 469 runs for the loss of five wickets—Hammond being not out with 210 runs and Ames also undefeated with 50 to his credit.

Barnett and Hutton, who gave England such a fine start in the First Test, both failed while Edrich again disappointed. McCormick at one stage had three wickets for 15 runs but he sent down too many short ones to prove effective against Hammond and Paynter who put up another new record after three wickets had fallen cheaply. Paynter needed only one run for his century when he was out!

London, June 24.

Twenty thousand spectators were present at Lord's to see W. R. Hammond win the toss again for England and elect to bat on a wicket that promises to produce plenty of runs. So much interest is being taken in this match that long before the time for the gates to be opened hundreds had queued up, waiting for admission.

C. J. Barnett and L. Hutton were again sent out to open the innings for England but they were not destined to stay long together for with the total at 12, Hutton, in playing a defensive stroke to a ball that came up nastily, gave Brown, fielding at short-squareleg, an easy catch. McCormick was the successful bowler. He had only scored four runs.

In the meantime Barnett got off to the mark quickly, hitting the fast bowler to square leg for a two and three respectively off successive deliveries.

McCormick bowled two no-balls in his first over while Stan McCabe started off with a wide. Barnett then got McCabe away to the off-boundary—off his back foot—but Edrich played on to McCormick—for a "duck"—when attempting to hook a short one. With the score at 20 for 2, Hammond came in to bat with Barnett.

Wally Hammond..... the cares of captaincy weigh but lightly on his shoulders.

These two batted steadily and while Hammond showed his usual confidence, Barnett looked safe for another big score though occasionally he appeared uncertain against McCormick. He eventually made the same mistake as Hutton—trying to hook

MCCORMICK'S FIGURES

Paynter joined Hammond and while both batted confidently the scoring was on the slow side. McCormick's figures at this stage were 3 for 15.

The crowd by this time swelled to 31,000 and the gates were closed. Hammond was very confident and twice sent Fleetwood-Smith to the on boundary in grand style. This over yielded ten runs. The English skipper then hit another boundary—off O'Reilly—when Fleetwood-Smith, fielding at fine leg, missed the ball. The fifty went up—after an hour's play.

Hammond had by this time got his eye well in and with a four off McCormick reached his half-century in 70 minutes. Paynter was very watchful and only scored 17 in an hour. Then he let fly at Fleetwood-Smith and was rewarded with a beautiful sixer which won for him a great ovation. He was very confident now.

LOUD APPLAUSE WHEN VERDICT ANNOUNCED

JURY OUT LESS THAN HOUR

A STORM OF APPLAUSE, unprecedented in the history of the Supreme Court of Hong Kong, greeted the verdict of Not Guilty which, after a retirement of 41 minutes, the Special Jury returned at the Criminal Sessions yesterday in the trial of Edwin Moreland Dwyer, 19-year old Able-seaman on H.M.S. Dorsetshire, charged with having murdered Leading Seaman Robert Dickinson on board the cruiser at sea on May 2.

WHEN HIS HONOUR the Acting Chief Justice, Mr. Justice R. E. Lindsell, pronounced the words that permitted Dwyer to leave the dock, another equally loud burst of clapping broke out and could not be quelled for some little time. The applause was not confined to the large number of naval men who made up the majority of the hundreds of people in court.

To the last Dwyer remained composed. While the jury were out he chatted with one of his warders and as they returned he smiled twice, seeming to study the expressions on the faces of the gentlemen of the jury, and again made a remark to his warder.

No sign of emotion showed on his face as he heard the verdict nor did he make any move to leave the dock.

As His Lordship said "Prisoner, you are discharged," however, he turned at once, left the dock, and disappeared from the Court in the company of a number of other sailors.

Yesterday's proceedings in the trial, in which more European interest has been evinced than in any other case for at least 24 years, were featured by the final addresses by counsel for the Crown and for the defence that lasted 40 minutes and one hour and 35 minutes respectively, and a summing-up by the Acting Chief Justice that occupied one hour and 34 minutes.

At the conclusion of the trial, His Lordship, in thanking the jury exempted them from jury service for a period of five years. (Continued on Page 2)

DEFENCE COUNSEL'S ADDRESS TO JURY

The Hon. Mr. Leo D'Almada, Castro Jnr., instructed by Mr. G. S. Hugh-Jones, of Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist, defended Dwyer. Mr. J. Whyatt, Crown Counsel, prosecuted. Mr. E. Davidson watched the case on behalf of the Admiralty.

The Special Jury comprised Messrs. H. H. Priestley (foreman), A. M. L. Soares, D. W. Munton, J. M. Noronha, I. W. Shewan, Chau Shu-ning and Li Tse-fong.

MR. WHYATT'S ADDRESS

Opening his address Mr. Whyatt said that whatever else the jury might be thinking he was sure they were unanimously of the opinion that the murder was committed by a man who had given the crime much premeditation, was moved by some strong motive, and who possessed some degree of boldness almost amounting to bravado, said Mr. Whyatt in his address to the jury.

"You must judge whether Dwyer possesses the qualities to fulfil that role," Mr. Whyatt said.

"Was he moved by a strong motive? Did he give it premeditation? Did he have boldness amounting to bravado?"

"He talked of the murder time and time again. It is not disputed that he had a detestation of Dickinson, and it is emphasised that he showed throughout coolness and a detachment which, I submit to you, was almost unnatural."

"If the defence emphasises that within a few minutes of the murder, Dwyer was cool, normal and unperturbed, he had to be so to carry out a crime like this."

"If it be true that he was cool and unperturbed before the murder, it was not entirely true that he maintained that composure after the murder."

"Once he was caught off his guard; by that I mean he was observed without knowing that he was so observed—he was sitting on the starboard boulders holding the guard rail and trying to be sick."

"He was a good actor. There is no doubt about that; there is no shadow of doubt."

"The jury will remember that, although he knew of Dickinson's death, he gave one witness the impression that he was surprised when he learned the news from that witness. If that was not acting, I do not know what was."

"Why should he act? Why should an innocent man act? Not only was he surprised, but he is described by Murphy as having a kind of smile or sneer on his face. That is strange."

"That gives you some insight into the man's mind, and it shows a very clear streak of vanity."

Continuing, Counsel said that he had called 42 witnesses and, with one exception, it had not been suggested that they were in any way untruthful or dishonest, though there may have been inaccuracies in their evidence. The only one who was described as a liar was Humphreys, and it was suggested that his evidence was an entire fabrication without a word of truth.

"TRUE IN ESSENTIALS"

"I submit that Humphreys' story in its essentials is true, the essential being that Dwyer invited him to the boys' locker flat for an immoral purpose."

"Do you think that these sordid details were just inventions? I submit that Humphreys was not saying anything untrue. What motive had he in giving false evidence, especially when he has admitted that he was friendly with Dwyer?"

"Humphreys has further stated that Dwyer showed him some live rounds of ammunition, and if his story is false it is a peculiar coincidence how it fits in with the evidence of other witnesses on his point."

"There was no motive for Humphreys to give false witness. I suggest to you that you must believe what Humphreys has told you in the witness box."

"Let me assume for a moment that you don't believe what Humphreys has said in this Court, or that he has not given any evidence at all. Does it make much difference? Humphreys has told you that a quarrel between Dwyer and Dickinson started from that time. We don't care about that. All we do know is that Dwyer had said that Dickinson was a most ignorant and most detestable person. We know, also, that he had threatened to shoot Dickinson."

"Throughout the Crown's case I have proved hatred and threat without Humphreys' evidence."

"It is true that some of my witnesses have said that when they heard the threats they regarded them as idle, but you must remember that these threats were taken seriously, as shown by the remark of the proprietor of the New York Hotel in Sydney who said to Dwyer: 'Young man, don't be foolish.'

"Apart from a threat, however, there was the conversation which Dwyer had on board with another seaman, when Dwyer asked: 'Is it possible to shoot a man aboard a ship with a gun purchased ashore?'

"Why should a seaman on the Dorsetshire contemplate purchasing a gun ashore? There were plenty of guns on the ship. And what a phenomenal coincidence that a man was shot on one of H.M. ships a few days after this conversation."

"FABRICATED STORY"

"Dwyer had stated at the Board of Inquiry aboard the ship that he was on the starboard side the whole time, and he suggested, as some corroboration to his story, that a Chinese saw him there when he was on his way to the 'heads'. The Chinese has stated that this was untrue, and I suggest to you it was a fabricated story, made up on the spur of the moment."

"Yesterday, my learned friend tried to show that the shot did not come from the booms. He endeavoured to show that it came from a gallery. But I call the cook to prove that the gallery was locked throughout the night."

"But what does it matter where the shot was fired from, so long as it was fired from the port side, if Dwyer, as he had stated, was actually on the starboard side? I submit that the reason why the defence brought this forward was that once it established that the shot was not fired from the booms, then the evidence regarding the overcoat lost all its significance."

THE OVERCOAT

"The matter of the overcoat is very important. Evidence has been given that, at 2 a.m. or thereabouts, there was an overcoat on the booms. At 5.30 a.m. it was gone; therefore between 2 a.m. and 5.30 a.m. somebody removed it. At 4 a.m. Dwyer came off watch, and he was seen going down the ladder on the starboard side carrying an overcoat. It was clear that he did not go from the bridge to the upper deck by any other means than by the booms."

"When Dwyer was on the bridge he did not have an overcoat, and the interval of time between leaving the bridge and getting to the recreation space was but a few minutes. It followed that Dwyer picked up the overcoat between the bridge and the recreation space, and this interval is narrowed even more by the fact that he called into the signal distributing office on his way, and did not have the overcoat then."

"One thing is certain, and I do not think it is disputed by the cross-examination of my witnesses that Dwyer did not pick up the overcoat from the upper deck. At the Inquiry Dwyer said he left his overcoat on a fan cover on the starboard side. There is no fan cover there."

"Why did he tell a lie about where he left his overcoat? Because it would have incriminated him."

"How could that incriminate him? In one way and one way only."

"By proving he was on the booms. That was the motive that he had for telling a lie. I suggest to you that the only reasonable explanation of so many things in this case is that Dwyer was guilty of the crime."

You remember I mentioned a series of alleged coincidences. You remember—

Dickinson was shot from the booms in a night watch and Dwyer had declared that he would shoot him from the booms on a night watch."

Dwyer had declared he would shoot Dickinson on the first opportunity he had; Dickinson was shot when Dwyer was serving on his first middle watch after making that threat."

The best chance Dwyer would have of shooting Dickinson was between midnight and 2 a.m., because Dwyer was doing "tricks" afterwards, Dickinson was shot at 1.33 a.m."

Dwyer asked if it was possible to murder anybody on board H.M. ships and get away with it."

Dwyer suggested there would be a panic on board if a murder was committed; 24 hours later, murder was committed."

Dwyer expressed a wish that Dickinson would not get to Weihaiwei. Before many hours elapsed that wish was fulfilled."

Dwyer walked to the port door of the gallery flat within a few minutes of Dickinson's going out to sleep. Dwyer did not return."

Dwyer was carrying an overcoat on that hot night, and not for the ordinary purpose of wearing it, because he had an ollockin."

Dwyer was seen carrying that overcoat down to the upper deck. Dwyer said he left the overcoat on a fan cover which does not exist, and the overcoat was found on the booms."

Dwyer had in his possession live rounds of ammunition, and the wherewithal to commit a murder."

"Three or four coincidences were possible, five or six were astonishing, six or seven were incredible, five or six were astonishing, six or seven were incredible, ten or 12 impossible. All these things fitted into one scheme and one single desire—the author is the prisoner, Dwyer."

"That is the only reasonable hypothesis," said Mr. Whyatt. "The evidence must satisfy the Jury beyond reasonable doubt as to the guilt of the accused. Although it has been fairly and properly tested by the defence, the essentials of the evidence have remained unchanged."

MR. D'ALMADA

"I venture to submit that at the conclusion of my address you can, by your fair and reasonable judgment on the evidence, come to no other decision than that this case is one fraught with some reasonable doubt and is not such as upon the evidence would warrant a conviction," said the Hon. Mr. D'Almada opening the address for the defence.

"According to the Crown, Dwyer was a man of considerable intelligence and his education was far above the average of the lower deck. He was a man with ambitions and hoped to be an officer someday."

"I suggest the Crown brought this up in order to show that his chances of obtaining ward-room rank would be seriously jeopardised if it came to light that he was guilty of a homosexual offence and that, therefore for that reason, and that reason only, he conceived an intense dislike of Dickinson and conceived, some two months before the shooting, a plan to get rid of him."

"The whole of that part of the Crown's case turned upon two incidents—Dickinson intertending with Dwyer and the latter showing some ammunition to Humphreys."

"That is the evidence of motive and what kind of a witness did the Crown produce in respect of it?"

"The only evidence in respect of motive was given by Humphreys, a man who gave his evidence in chief tolerably well but who failed miserably to stick to his story when under cross-examination. My friend is perfectly entitled to minimise the fact of his contradictions and he is also perfectly entitled to say that these contradictions were only as to time and were therefore unimportant, and to suggest the rejection of the evidence in its entirety."

STORY BEHIND A PINE TWIG

A seeming inoffensive pine twig lay on the table at the Kowloon Court yesterday when Yam Kam-lo appeared before Mr. Macfadyen on a charge of assaulting and wounding Cheung Shu-wai. Both the defendant and the complainant are book-printers in the employ of the Shing Chan Book Shop, Tat Nam Street.

Divisional Inspector F. J. J. Portallion related the story behind the twig. Cheung and Yam had been working together. Cheung picked up a batch of printed papers and brought them to the foreman, Yeung Chin, claiming that the printed papers were all printed from type which he had set up without any aid from the other workers. On being told of this, Yam became angry. He picked up a piece of wood with which he hit Cheung. This happened at 11 a.m. Shortly before 4 p.m. Cheung regained consciousness and went to Shunshulpo Police Station to claim damages from Yam.

On a bond of $10, Yam Kam-lo was bound over to be of good conduct for one year. He was also ordered to pay one dollar for treatment Cheung received at the Kowloon Hospital.

CATHOLIC NEWS AND NOTES

THE BLESSING OF THE BOATS

Every year at Aberdeen there is a ceremony, too little known to the people of Hong Kong, that is both an interesting sight and a touching example of Christian faith—the blessing of the fishermen's boats.

It takes place on the Sunday nearest to the feast of the Apostle Peter, the Fisherman, and this year tomorrow is the day. The ceremony takes place at the foot of the Regional Seminary, on the side that faces the open sea. Many of the fishermen are Catholics and some bring their friends with them. They bring their boats near the shore, and a procession of the Blessed Sacrament comes down the slope of the hill, with the singing carried out by the students of the Seminary.

The Bishop, Mr. Valorta, attends, and from the edge of the shore blesses the fishermen and their families and their boats and their nets. Then a sermon is preached by a Chinese priest to the assembled gathering, and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament takes place in the open air.

The idea of the blessing, as every Catholic will realise, is the consecration to God of the work of the people, a reminder that the lives of all men fundamentally belong to God and should by conscious act be dedicated to His service. The poor fishermen enter fully into the spirit of the ceremony and attend the function each year with great eagerness.

PETER AND PAUL

It is often asked why the feasts of these two Apostles, which occur on next Wednesday, are celebrated together, for it seems to some that St. Peter, the head of the Apostles, deserves a special commemoration entirely for himself.

The origin of the custom is really a historical one, for according to the common tradition the two apostles were put to death on the same day, though not in the same year. The coincidence struck the people so forcibly that they honoured them together.

Both died in Rome. The two apostles were, of course, closely associated in life, and did a good deal of their work together. Though the two men were very different both in character and outlook they had the same burning zeal and consuming desire to spread the knowledge of Christ. St. Peter worked mostly among the Jews, and may be said to represent

AN AMERICAN CATHOLIC DIPLOMAT

A recent change among the Ambassadors of the United States was the transfer to Belgium of Mr. Joseph G. Davies, who previously was Ambassador to Moscow. Mr. Davies is a Catholic, and when he was nominated to Moscow, after the resumption of diplomatic relations between the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. five years ago, President Roosevelt insisted that a Catholic priest should have the right to minister to the foreign Catholics there. This was granted at once, though it must have caused surprise and perhaps annoyance to many Russians to see the foreign clerical garb again on the streets of Moscow. It had been absent for many years.

Lady Chilton, the wife of the Viscount Chilton, the British Ambassador to Moscow, is also a Catholic.

Mr. Davies' new post also carries with it the duties of Minister to the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg.

A MEMORY OF THE CORONATION

The coronation of King George VI is recalled in connection with the announcement that the Knight Grand Cross of the Order of St. Sylvester has been conferred on Capt. Walter Legge, for when Cardinal Pizzardo went to London as Papal Envoy to the Coronation, the King appointed this officer to attend him.

Capt. Legge, who is a convert to the Catholic Faith, has already been honoured by the Pope, for he was appointed a Privy Chamberlain to His Holiness five years ago, and he is also a Knight of Malta. He served throughout the war as an officer in the Coldstream Guards and is a holder of the Monsieus.

As a novelist he has hidden his identity under the name "Horace Carradoc." He is the author of "Geoffrey Sincial" and "A City of the Plain."

the more conservative element of the Jewish converts: St. Paul, when disappointed with the Jews, turned largely to the Gentiles and became known as the "Apostle of the Gentiles." He urged consideration for them when discussion arose as to the preservation or abandonment of typically Jewish customs, and it was largely due to him that some of these customs were abandoned so quickly.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON SERMON

SUBJECT: CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
The subject of the Lesson Sermon in all Christian Science Churches tomorrow June 26 will be "Christian Science."

The Golden Text will be "The ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness and sorrow and sighing shall flee away." (Isa. 35:10).

Among others the following citations will be read from the Bible "If ye love me keep my commandments. And I will pray the Father and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever: even the Spirit of truth: whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not neither knoweth him; but ye know him, for he dwelleth in you and shall be in you. But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you."

(John 14:15-17:26).

The following citations will also be read from the Christian Science Textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. "Christian Science rightly understood leads to eternal harmony. Truth's immortal idea is sweeping down the centuries, gathering beneath its wings the sick and sinning. My weary hope tries to realise that happy day when man shall recognise the Science of Christ and love his neighbour as himself—when he shall realise God's omnipotence and the healing power of the divine love in what it has done and is doing for mankind. In the words of St. John: "He shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever. This Comforter I understand to be Divine Science." (Parks 338-55).

DAEDALUS CARRYING RED CROSS FILM FOR LONDON

The Imperial Airways plane, Daedalus, left Hong Kong for Bangkok yesterday with two passengers, Mr. Collin and Mr. S. Butler.

She also carried 158,430 kilos of mail and 22,384 kilos of freight. Of interest is the fact that on board the Daedalus was a film depicting the activities in and around Hankow of the International Red Cross of Central China.

This film is being carried to London by Imperial Airways free of charge.

DELLA DELAYED

The Della, which was scheduled to arrive from Bangkok yesterday afternoon, was delayed at that port and will arrive this morning.

FOOT ITCH

Athlete's Foot

According to the Government Health Bulletin No. E-23, at least 50% of the adult population of the United States are being attacked by the disease known as Athlete's Foot.

Usually the disease starts between the toes. Little watery blisters form, and the skin cracks and peels. After a while, the itching becomes intense, and you feel as though you would like to scratch off all the skin.

BEWARE OF IT SPREADING

Often the disease travels all over the bottom of the feet. The soles of your feet become red and swollen. The skin also cracks and peels, and the itching becomes worse and worse.

Get rid of this disease as quickly as possible, because it is very contagious and it may go to your hands or even to the under arm or crotch of the legs.

Most people who have Athlete's Foot have tried all kinds of remedies to cure it without success. Ordinary germicides, antiseptics, salve or ointments seldom do any good.

HERE'S HOW TO TREAT IT

The germ that causes the disease is known as Trinea Trichophyton. It buries itself deep in the tissues of the skin and is very hard to kill. A test made shows it takes 15 minutes of boiling to kill the germ; so you can see why ordinary remedies are unsuccessful.

H. F. was developed solely for the purpose of treating Athlete's Foot. It is a liquid that penetrates and dries quickly. You just paint the affected parts. It peels off the tissue of the skin where the germ breeds.

ITCHING STOPS IMMEDIATELY

As soon as you apply H. F. you will find that the itching is immediately relieved. You should paint the infected parts with H. F. night and morning until your feet are well. Usually this takes from three to ten days, although in severe cases it may take longer or in mild cases less time.

H. F. will leave the skin soft and smooth. You will marvel at the quick way it brings you relief, especially if you are one of those who have tried for years to get rid of Athlete's Foot without success.

THE ARMY

CONCENTRATION OF INFANTRY

The War Office announces that consequent upon the reduction in the number of infantry battalions in the division, which was announced by the Secretary of State for War in the House of Commons on March 10, it has been decided to make certain changes in the composition of the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Divisions, and in the peace-time stations of certain units, the object of which is to effect a concentration of the whole of the infantry of the 1st and 2nd Divisions in the Aldershot Command and of the Mobile Division in the Salisbury Plain area.

In announcing the proposed changes in composition of the Motorized Division based on the light machine-gun, the Secretary of State for War explained that the war division, which would be a flexible formation, might in future consist of nine battalions supported by artillery and other arms according to need. At the same time, the intention to reorganize the divisional artillery in five units of 12 instead of six guns was announced.

The changes in infantry and artillery units necessary to give effect to the above reorganization having been put into operation, the next step is the reorganization of divisions and the redistribution of units to bring them under more effective divisional control. Effect will be given to this redistribution during the individual training season, 1938-1939.

The Times Military Correspondent writes:—

It would appear that this redistribution implies the removal of the 7th Infantry Brigade from Tidworth, and its replacement there by the 1st Cavalry Brigade from Aldershot. The barracks of the latter would then be available for the one "outside" infantry brigade of the 2nd Division. At present this is provided by the 4th Guards Brigade, temporarily assembled for training in the summer from battalions of the Guards which are available in London.

To transfer them permanently to Aldershot might be difficult, in view of their ceremonial duties in

ROYAL AIR FORCE

NEW BOMBING RANGE

A high-altitude live and practice bombing range will become available for general use during July at Wainfleet Sands, Lincoln.

About a dozen ranges of this type are being provided in various parts of the country for the instruction of pilots and bomb-almers in attacking from heights above those usual at the ordinary armament training stations.

The range and range party at Wainfleet will be administered by No. 1 Air Observers' School, North Coates, Grimsby, from July 1 to September 1, when the administration will be transferred to No. 1 Air Armament School, which by then will have been moved from Eastchurch to the new station at Manby, Louth.

No local landing-ground is being provided in connexion with the range. Facilities will be available for the use of the range by day and night at all times.

London and the existence of barracks there. The battalions of the 7th Infantry Brigade would still be left without fresh barracks to house them. It thus seems more likely that the 7th Infantry Brigade may be moved to Aldershot, to become part of the 2nd Division; while the 4th Guards Brigade may be reallocated to the 3rd Division in the Southern Command for collective training, and for war.

Barrack accommodation has proved no small hindrance to a scientific solution of the problem of reorganizing the Army on modern lines. This experience serves as a caution against initiating building schemes without reference to changes in strategic policy and the conditions of warfare, which may demand changes in tactical organizations. Again, the construction of new depot barracks might be a means of preventing modifications of the regimental system which are coming to be regarded as desirable. Bricks and mortar can have a serious blinding power on the proper dispersal of military forces. Such contingencies are doubtless being watched.

YOUTH'S IDEAS ON LOVE

One of the highlights in "Ex-Lady," a Warner Bros. picture replete with startling situations, now showing at the Queen's Theatre, is a genuine and highly exotic rumba performed by a Spanish dancer, Ynez.

Her slender and sylph-like figure, costumed with a smile and a modicum of flimsy material, weaves in graceful motion to the rhythm of a Cuban orchestra. The soft lights of a gay and festive Havana casino add to the beauty of the scene.

Other spicy scenes take place in studio parties in New York's Bohemian art colony. The picture, based on the story of Edith Fitzgerald and Robert Riskin, treats of the theories of the youthful generation on the problems of love and marriage.

Bette Davis has the title role with Gene Raymond playing opposite her.

Doug. Jr., Soaring

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is rapidly attaining celebrity comparable to, and even challenging the fame of his father at the peak. His ripening into a dashing screen favorite became sensationally evident in "The Prisoner of Zenda" when he revealed a high romantic hair blended with the inherited sense of humor. Now RKO Radio has recognized his brilliant gifts by casting him in the top male roles opposite three top female stars—Ginger Rogers, Irene Dunne and Katharine Hepburn. Currently he shares honors with Miss Dunne in the sprightly comedy romance, "Joy of Living." He has completed a co-starring role in the dramatic comedy "Having Wonderful Time" with Ginger. He has just now been cast to share headlines with Katharine Hepburn in "The Mad Miss Manton," a mysterious drama of a society girl detective and an admiring reporter who acts as her volunteer protector.

WHO TOLD YOU THAT?

A woman with a pram containing two children was about to cross the road when a bus approached.

The driver pulled up, but the woman still waited for the bus to pass.

The driver signalled to her to carry on, and the party hesitantly started on their way; but, seemingly nervous of the massive vehicle, the woman turned in her steps and regained the kerb.

The bus driver poked his head out of the window and said: "I tell you what I'll do, lady—I'll take you for lift!"

GOVERNMENT'S REFUSAL TO ACT IN SPAIN BOMBINGS DISTURBS COMMONS

Mr. Lloyd George Questions Premier On Protests

London, June 24.

Mr. David Lloyd George, the veteran Liberal leader, made one of his now infrequent interventions at question time in the House of Commons yesterday when the bombing and sinking of the British steamer, Thorpe, and the sinking of the Greek steamer, Sunion, were raised by the Conservative Member for Norwood, Mr. D. Sandys.

Repeating to questions, the Prime Minister, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, said that the British Government was asking for an early explanation of the bombings from the Burgos Government.

Mr. Lloyd George asked whether the British protest was being sent to those to whom the bombing machines belonged, or whether the Prime Minister was confining his protest to the Franco Government, when it was taken that the planes belonged to the Italian and German Governments.

Mr. Chamberlain said: "These machines must be considered exactly in the same categories as other arms and equipment—supplies from foreign countries to both sides in Spain."

Mr. Clement Attlee, leader of the Labour Opposition, gave notice that he would move the adjournment of the House to draw attention to yesterday's attacks on British shipping and the Government's refusal either to afford adequate protection or to take measures to prevent a recurrence.

Mr. W. Wedgwood Benn (Labour, Dudley) asked the Prime Minister to receive the two captains of the bombed ships, who were in the precincts of the House. Mr. Chamberlain agreed.

The Prime Minister later saw the captains of the British steamers Stanwell and Stanhope, and was shown extracts from the logs of the ships, and photographs of the damage done.

The Stanhope was attacked fifteen times, seven times in Barcelona and eight times in Valencia, despite the fact that the deckhouse of the ship was painted on the top and sides with the British colours, and the name of the vessel in six-foot letters was printed on the ship.

The two captains answered various questions regarding the number of planes and the dates of the bombings.

Mr. Churchill declared that he believed it to be true that no other great naval power would tolerate such treatment as had been meted out to Britain.

"Japan, Italy, Germany or the United States would not tolerate this treatment month after month," Mr. Churchill declared.

ITALIAN GOODWILL MISSION

Received By Duce After Japan Trip

Rome, June 24.

Signor Mussolini yesterday received the Goodwill Mission, headed by Signor Calboli, which recently returned from Japan and Manchukuo.

Signor Calboli communicated to Il Duce messages of friendship from the Emperor of Japan, Henry Pu Yi of Manchukuo and the Japanese Premier, Prince Konoye. He also made a report of the political, economic and military position of Japan. (Reuters).

TRADE MISSION ADVISER

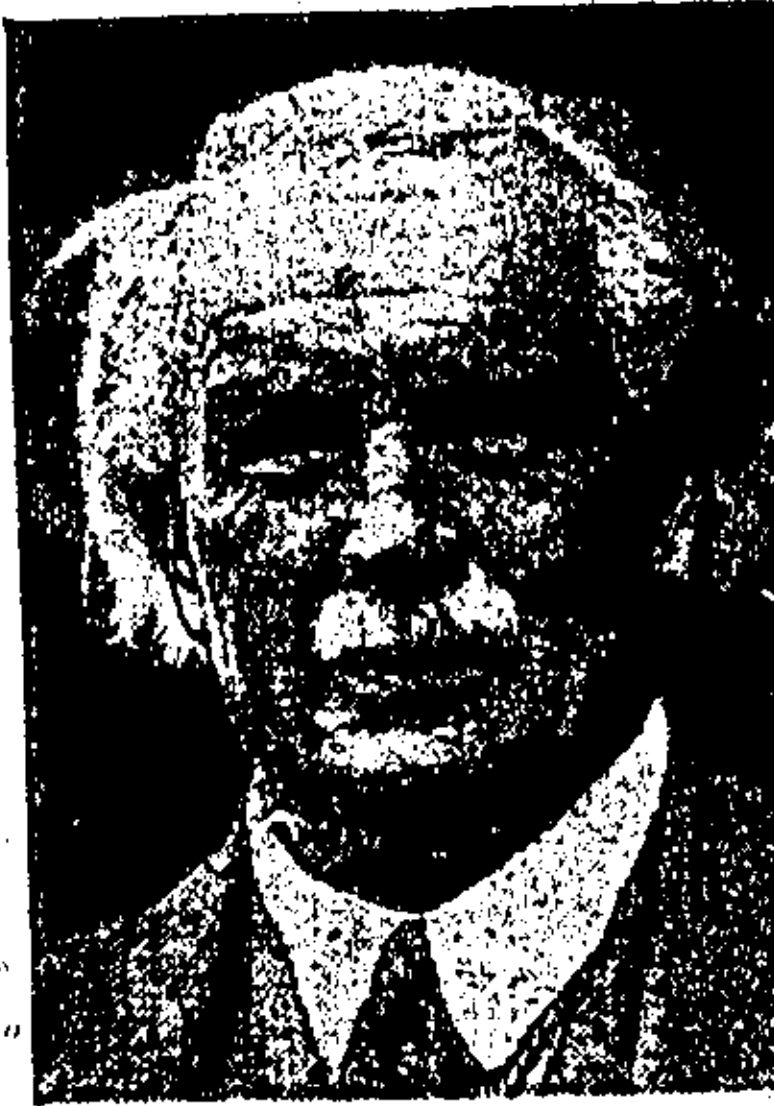

London, June 24.

Mr. G. G. Fitzmaurice, Third Legal Adviser in the Foreign Office, has been attached to the United Kingdom Trade Delegation to the United States in an advisory capacity and called for Washington on Wednesday. (British Wireless).

ANDRE MAUROIS IN ACADEMIE

Paris, June 24.

The famous French author, Andre Maurois, was yesterday elected secretary general of the Academie Française in succession to Rene Doumic. (Transocean).

Mr. David Lloyd George

"Moreover, no force in the world would dare offer such treatment to any of those countries."

"That is a most grave fact."

NOT EXPEDIENT

Mr. R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, wound up the debate.

He said it might be legal for British ships to go into Spanish ports, but it was not expedient at the present time.

"We will protect British ships on the high seas," Mr. Butler declared.

Mr. Butler added that the Government proposed to continue to examine the suggestion that safety zones and free ports should be provided, and Britain was now engaged in discussing with the Burgos authorities the subject of free ports.

The Opposition motion for the adjournment of the House was defeated by 257 votes to 141. (Reuters).

DR. BENES TO VISIT PARIS

Paris, June 24.

The French Government is making preparations for an official visit to Paris from the President of the Czechoslovak Republic, Dr. Edouard Benes, it was revealed yesterday.

The exact date of the visit has not yet been fixed, but it will probably take place in September. The visit will be for the purpose of dedicating a memorial to Czechoslovak legionaries who fell in the Great War. (Transocean).

Royal Visit To Paris Postponed

THEIR MAJESTIES OBSERVE FAMILY MOURNING

London, June 24.

It is officially announced that the visit to Paris of King George and Queen Elizabeth, originally scheduled to begin on June 25, has been postponed until July 19 to 20.

Consequently, the unveiling of the Australian war shrine in Villers Bretonneux has been deferred until July 22.

As already intimated the reason for the postponement of the visit is the death of the Countess of Strathmore, mother of the Queen. (Transocean).

ENGAGEMENTS CANCELLED

London, June 24.

No court mourning will be ordered as the result of the death of the Queen's mother, but Their Majesties will observe family mourning. Queen Elizabeth has cancelled all immediate public engagements.

The President of France, M. Lebrun, was first among the thousands who sent telegrams of condolences to the Queen. (Reuters).

Czech Air Tragedy

Prague, June 24.

Three Czech military planes collided in mid-air over the city of Prague yesterday afternoon. All three crashed to earth, with the loss of two lives.

At the time of the disaster the planes were taking part in a general rehearsal for an air display to be held on July 7 in connection with the 10th Sokol congress. (Transocean).

Dr. Rushdi Aras

ITALIAN NAVAL VISIT TO MALTA

London, June 24.

In reply to a question in the House of Commons yesterday regarding the visit of the Italian 1st Squadron to Malta, Mr. R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said that in April, 1937, the Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean paid an official visit to Spezia. This visit was now being returned by the Commander-in-Chief of the Italian 1st Squadron. (British Wireless).

M. TATARESCU IN LONDON

London, June 24.

Lord Halifax, Foreign Secretary, yesterday entertained to luncheon M. Tatarescu, the Rumanian statesman, now in London on a private visit.

M. Tatarescu has met a number of leading personal ties in official circles during the last few days, but his conversations have been quite unofficial and informal. (British Wireless).

TURKO- AFGHANISTAN ALLIANCE

Ankara, June 24.

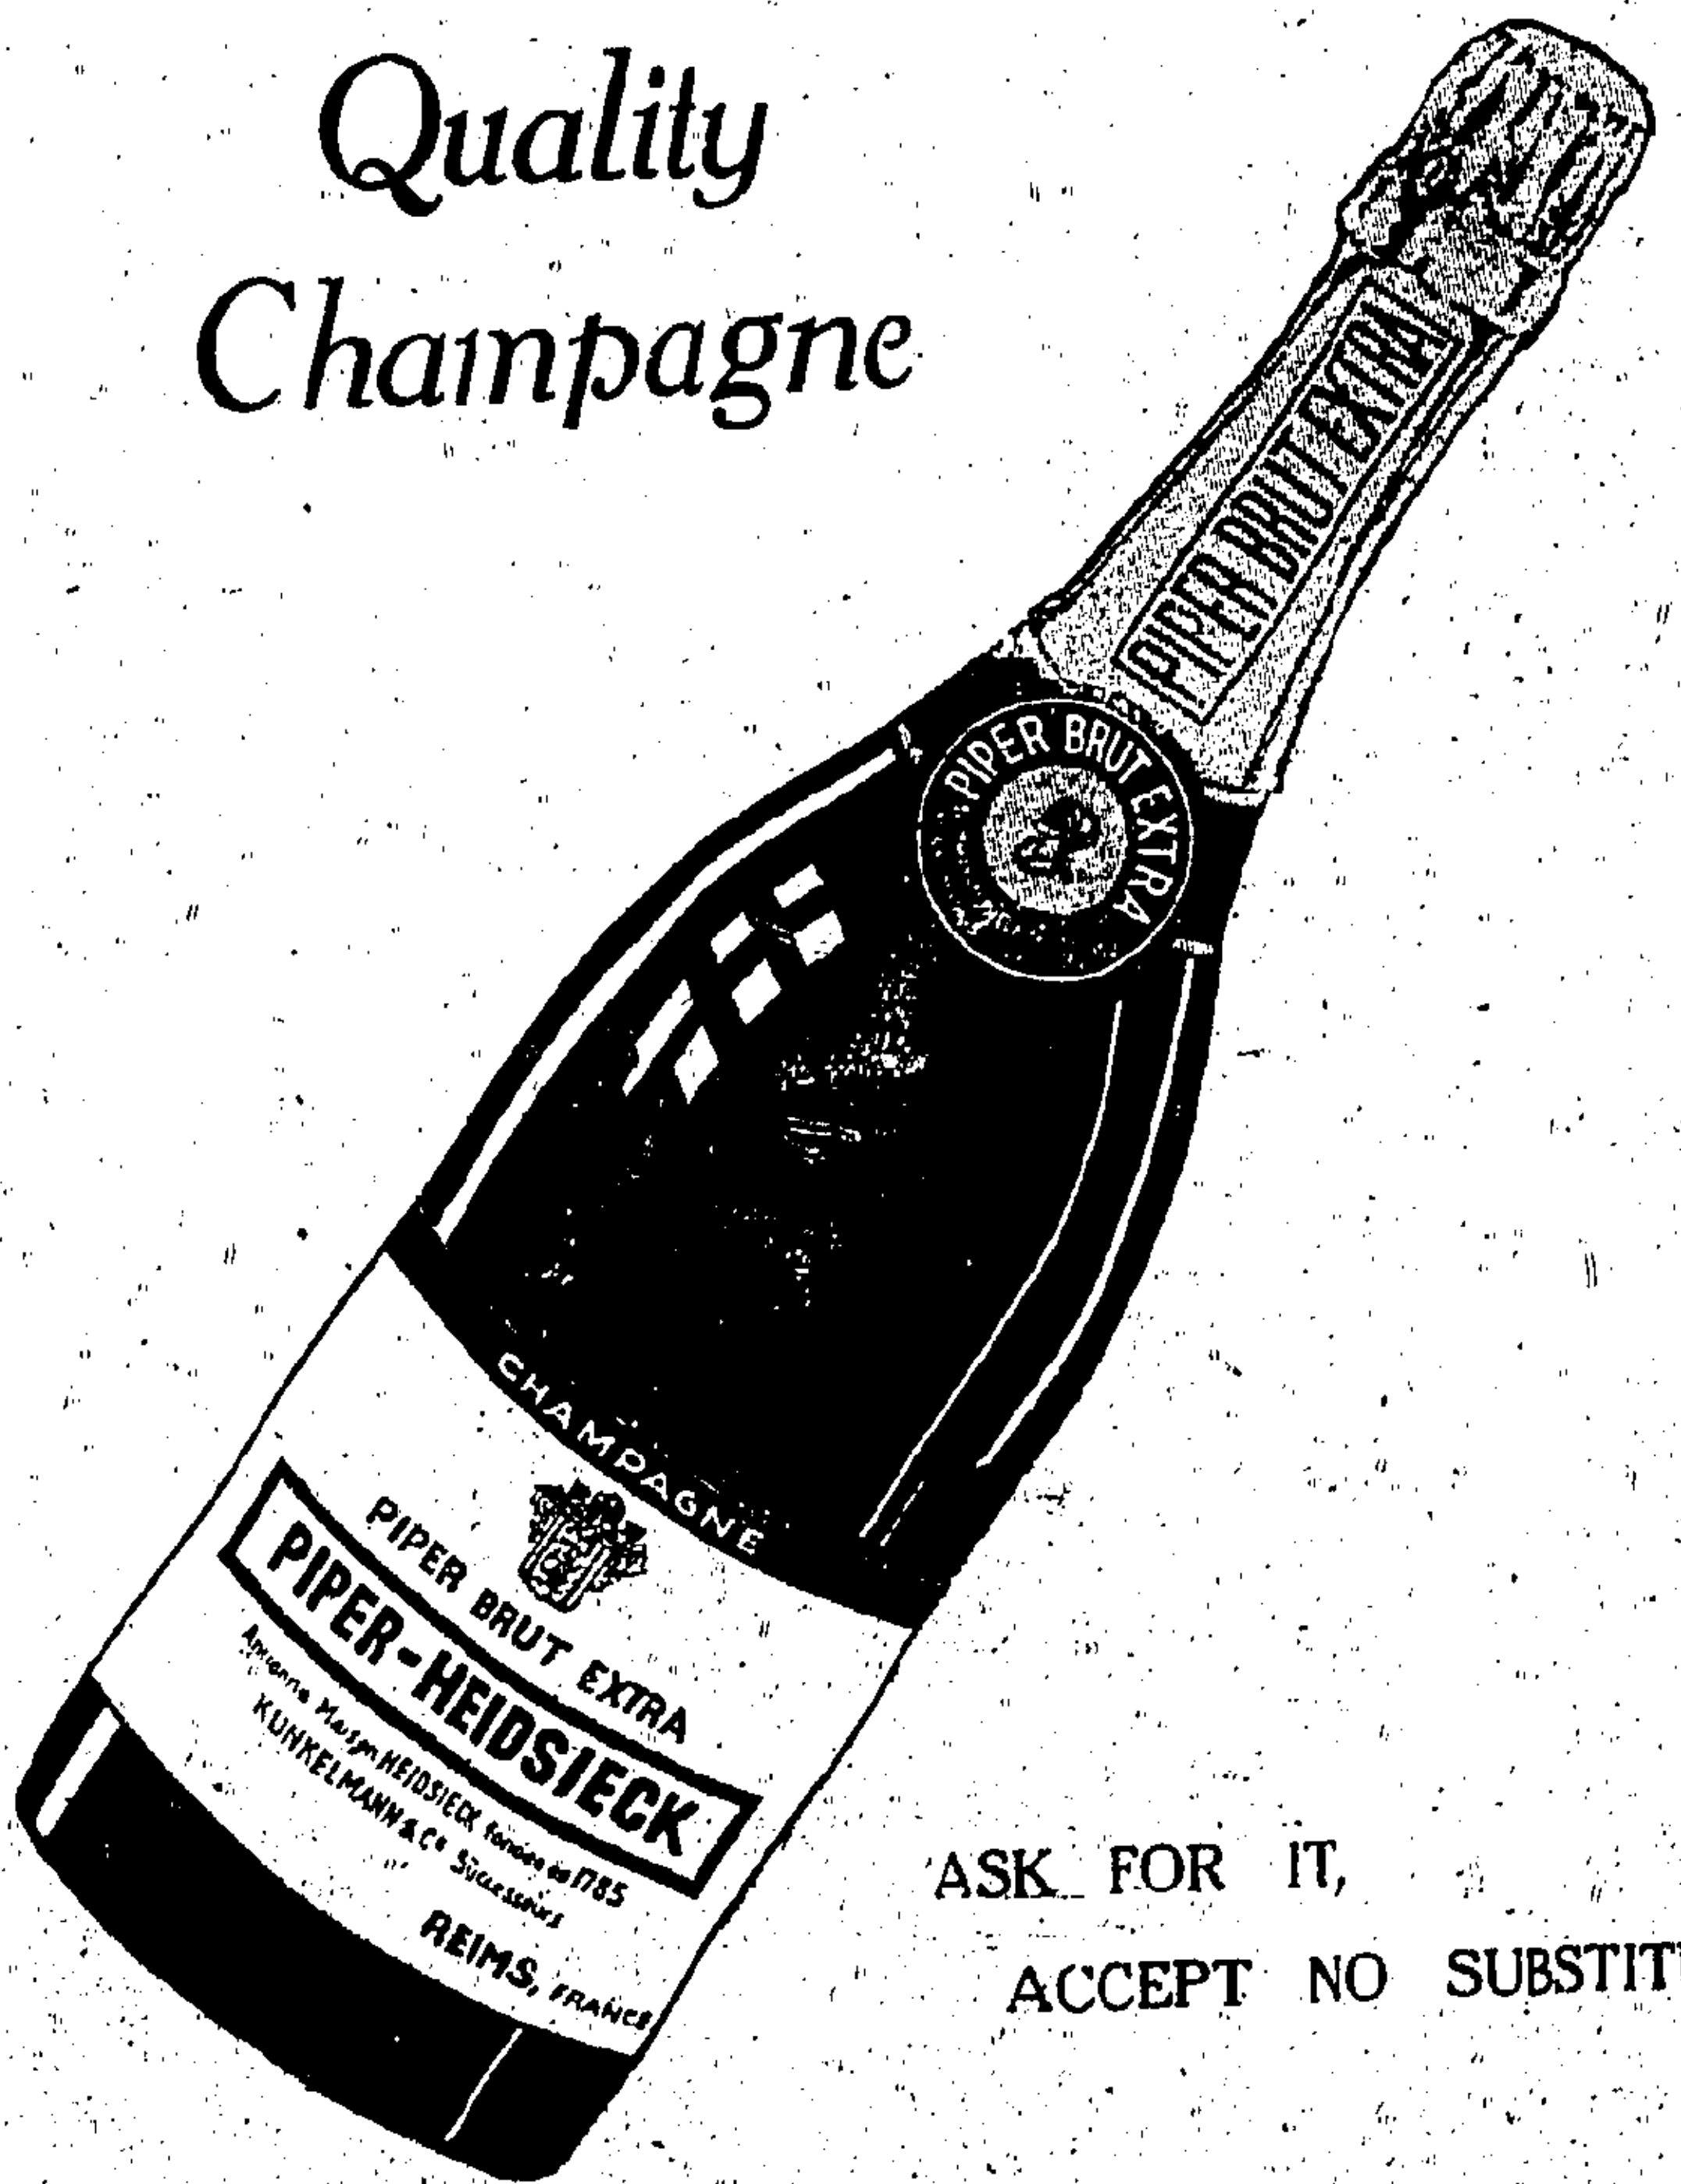

Dr. Rushdi Aras, Turkish Foreign Minister, addressing the National Assembly on the question of renewal of the Treaty of Amity between Turkey and Afghanistan, said it was a treaty according to which each of the contracting parties undertook to place its entire military resources at the disposal of the other in the event of war.

The treaty with Iran provided for neutrality in the event of one of the contracting parties being attacked by a third party. This neutrality could, however, easily be expanded into united action.

In the further course of his speech Dr. Aras stressed Turkey's friendly relations with Egypt, Hejaz, Yemen and the entire Arabian world. (Transocean).

HUMPHREYS' EVIDENCE EXAMINED

"If a man makes a mistake as to time you may say this is a reasonable mistake, that it is not such a mistake as should make us view his evidence with suspicion."

"But this is not the case. What happened here is this: Shortly after this tragic murder Humphreys appeared before the Board of Inquiry. He made certain statements in regard to this incident. He made a statement that two or three minutes had elapsed before he followed Dwyer into the boys' locker flat, and that when he got there Dwyer was naked. It was only five minutes later that Dickinson followed him and when he got there Dwyer had a tropical singlet on."

"And what was his evidence at the Police Court?—It was a contradiction of his previous story in more ways than one. The contradictions were that, so far from having followed Dwyer two or three minutes afterwards, he followed him on his heels—two or three seconds—and immediately behind him came Dickinson, who found Dwyer naked."

"These are not unimportant contradictions—they are of extreme importance when you consider the gravity of the case and that the whole of the Crown's case hinges upon the question of motive."

HUMPHREYS' EVIDENCE

"There are other matters in connection with Humphreys' evidence which I suggest should make you view it with extreme suspicion."

"There is the fact that by the light of a single lamp he was able to see quite clearly and yet, after having seen everything quite clearly, after having raised a shout and after having identified Dickinson as the man interfering with Dwyer, he chose to strike a few matches."

"When faced with the question as to why he should do so after having seen everything quite clearly, Humphreys gave an entirely new statement regarding what had taken place that night—an incident which he had never mentioned before."

"He stated that the reason he struck the matches was because Dickinson dived under a table and crawled under it to make his get-away."

"All these incidents happened after Dickinson had been identified, and in the light of these contradictions, can you believe his evidence? I submit you cannot."

"There is a further peculiar feature in connection with his evidence and that is this: They were found together in the flat and the inference the Crown asks you to draw is that they were there for an immoral offence."

"Dickinson found them there and asked Humphreys to go back to the mess. Humphreys did so but stayed awake, being sufficiently curious to want to know what had happened."

"But what did he do when Dwyer came back? He was sufficiently content to go to sleep after hearing Dwyer mumble things, the only thing he heard being the name of Dickinson. Is Dickinson such a name as to register itself clearly upon one's mind when heard with a series of mumbled words by another person?"

"You see the serious position which Humphreys is in if his evidence is to be believed—the predicament in which he would find himself if the Crown case that he and Dwyer went to the flat for an immoral purpose was true."

"Not only Dwyer but Humphreys would be reported. Standing by itself, this evidence mattered nothing at all but if you regard it in the light of the evidence as a whole I submit that it is not the kind of evidence on which the Crown could rely to seek a motive for this wicked offence."

"The showing of the bullets—What is the suggestion there? There was no question of Humphreys being sworn to secrecy, no question of any particular caution being exercised. There was a plain, open conversation, the upshot of which was Dwyer voluntarily taking Humphreys to his locker and showing him two or three rounds of ammunition. What would you expect of it in these circumstances if Humphreys is to be believed? What would you expect Dwyer to do apart from what Humphreys had said he did—holding the bullets in his clenched fist so that Humphreys could not make out the number? I suggest that Dwyer did not show any ammunition to Humphreys."

"If you reject Humphreys' evidence, as I submit you should, the position becomes one which my friend by anticipation mentioned to you in his address. The position becomes one in which, as it were, Humphreys had given no evidence at all. The position reduces itself into this: there was mutual detestation between Dwyer and Dickinson, a dislike arising from a cause of which we know not, a dislike which Dickinson gave full vent to by bearing down on Dwyer."

MOTIVE WOULD GO

"Don't you see that the moment you arrived at that position, although you may have ample evidence of threats having been uttered time and time again, the position is very far removed from one in which there would be gone—there would be no question of Dwyer's prospects being jeopardised because Dickinson might report him for a homo-sexual offence. There would also be no question of anything at all except the normal detestation between them."

"The motive then would be merely this: Dwyer's suggestion must be to get rid of Dickinson for the sole reason that he was being hard on him, giving him unnecessarily difficult tasks and generally taking advantage of his position in bullying him."

"That is the position if you reject the evidence of Humphreys, a deserter who fails to desert successfully."

"If you, in spite of that, still believe that there might be some truth in Humphreys' story what then would be the position? If his statement is accepted you must also accept his story that he was wholly clothed. The inference to be drawn in connection with that is that if Dickinson were to report Dwyer he also had to report Humphreys who in turn would say that Dickinson himself was seen by him interfering with Dwyer."

"Do you believe that in these circumstances Dickinson would have reported Dwyer as the Crown suggests Dwyer was afraid he might? In these circumstances, I submit with some confidence that you cannot imagine him doing such a thing."

"The only evidence we have as to their subsequent conduct is that there was mutual detestation, and although you may well think that that dislike would give rise to threats, I submit that that dislike is very far from sufficient to provide you or anyone with the motive for committing the crime with which Dwyer is charged."

"I submit if you examine this evidence in the light of common sense and surrounding circumstances you can come to no other conclusion than this: that there is no evidence to support the Crown's suggestion that there was motive for the commission of so serious a crime; that the dislike amounts to no more than threats."

"You must remember that it has been said Dickinson was unpopular with a certain section of the ship. So much for the motive of dislike."

"We come now to the third of the Crown's points—the threats. These threats were uttered in the course of conversation held with no less than 11 persons."

"Is that the conduct of a man with any serious intention to commit murder? Is that the conduct of a man who has formed a definite plan to commit this offence? What was he doing if these were the circumstances? It was sheer madness on his part to advertise himself and gave himself undue publicity."

"The number of times Dwyer uttered these threats and expressed his dislike of Dickinson should warn you of the danger of taking them seriously, of saying that because of these threats we feel that there must be something in this charge."

"What would you expect normally in a case of this kind. Do people go about saying they would do something which they were going to do? If the Crown put before you evidence that in an unguarded moment Dwyer mentioned he was going to murder Dickinson then you will be fully entitled to take that against him, because that showed the man had such intentions in his mind. But in the light of the openness with which these threats were uttered, you can come to no other conclusion than that these threats are to be treated at no more than their face value as, in fact, they were treated by the men who heard them."

THREATS PROVE MURDER?

"Can you say that these threats must be taken as evidence going to prove that Dwyer committed this murder? It is natural to assume in such circumstances that a man intending to commit a crime, advertises it for two months on end before doing it?"

"The next point that the Crown brings in support of its case is 'opportunity,' but if Dwyer was in a position to commit this offence, so at least were 150 men sleeping on the deck that night. If Dwyer was in a position to shoot Dickinson because he knew where he was sleeping, so were they all. At least there is ample evidence to show that several people saw Dickinson getting ready to sleep that night."

"The Crown must admit that the opportunity was present for everybody, but the Crown suggests that there was not only opportunity on Dwyer's part but conduct pointing to him as the man, and that conduct lies in his particular movements that night."

"What was he doing? He was waiting to go on tricks. He was part of the watch at that particular time, and there is nothing unnatural for a man in these circumstances to walk round about, especially in a temperature such as we have heard of and know a ship as hot as the Dorsetshire (as you gentlemen know from your visit)."

THE OVERCOAT

"Coming to the question of the overcoat, in which the Crown relies as a connecting link with the crime."

"There was nothing else to show that Dwyer was ever on the booms that night, nothing that the Crown could find as a connecting link to these suspicious elements. To provide that link, the Crown produces the overcoat."

"There was nothing to connect Dwyer with the booms except this coat."

"In the light of the Crown's own case, are you going to believe that if that coat was there, it had been used by Dwyer for a purpose other than an innocent one after going off tricks? Does that appear to you as a reasonable proposition? If he did go back for the coat with a guilty mind, his object was

PEAK MURDER CHARGE

Cook Boy Committed To Sessions

Charged with the murder of Mrs. Sybil Ruby Challinor at No. 499 The Peak on May 5, Lam Chun, cook boy, was committed to stand trial at the Criminal Sessions by Mr. Butters at the Central Court yesterday.

Dr. G. H. Thomas was recalled by the prosecution yesterday. He testified that defendant had been under this care from May 5 till June 10 and he found no sign of leprosy in defendant.

Wong Kit, detective stationed at Gough Hill Police Station, stated that he was instructed to go to No. 499, The Peak, while on the way there with one other detective, they met the house cooie and the gardener. Together the party returned to Mr. Challinor's residence.

When they arrived, witness found the lights were on in the house and as he flashed his torch light on the roof, he saw the shadow of a figure crouching. The figure jumped from the roof top to the ground. Witness seized hold of the figure and it was the accused.

Sergeant H. N. Moran testified that he received a telephone call from Mr. Challinor, informing him that Mrs. Challinor was dead. Together with two Chinese detectives he went to the scene where he found defendant lying on the concrete path outside the house.

"He was covered with blood and was dressed in a white jacket and white singlet and had on a pair of socks. He wore no trousers or shoes. He also had round his waist a leather belt," said witness.

Further formal evidence was given by Detective-Inspector C. R. Rozeksky, who was in charge of the investigations.

JAPAN'S "RED" COMPLEX

EVER SINCE men developed sufficient intelligence to tie a piece of stone to a length of wood and so create quite an effective death-dealing weapon, some supposed cause has always been brought forward as a reason for waging a war, just to give the hostilities a measure of respectability and provide justification for the actions of the aggressor.

So it is with the present Sino-Japanese war, and the cause under which Japan would disguise her true motives is the suppression of Communism which the aggressors would have the world believe is sweeping through China like wild-fire.

Of course, as with all allegations and statements emanating from the Japanese and their supporters, the accusation that China is being Bolshevized has been regarded with the usual disbelief by impartial and well-informed foreign observers.

IN SPITE of this, however, the Japanese are still using the bogey of Communism to justify their unwarranted aggression and barbarous behaviour towards innocent Chinese civilians.

The last outburst is by General Sadao Araki, newly appointed Minister for Education, who, in an article in the influential Tokyo daily, Miyako Shimbun, claims that "the fundamental solution of the Sino-Japanese conflict lies in the nullification of the activities of the Comintern and Soviet Union."

But, with all their accusations about the spread of Communism in China and their claims that the war is being waged solely to save the Chinese people from the perils of Bolshevism, the Japanese have overlooked a most important fact—a fact that entirely destroys the ground on which they base their pretensions.

And that is that for years prior to the start of the present hostilities, General Chiang Kai-shek had waged a ruthless, incessant and, in the main, successful war against the Communist elements in China.

The world has a short memory but not so short as to forget the Generalissimo's effective efforts to eradicate Communism.

THIS BEING so, it is remarkable that the Japanese do not realise how ridiculous they appear when they claim that by destroying the Chiang Kai-shek regime they will thus succeed in wiping out Communism in China.

There is only one "ism" connected with the Sino-Japanese war; and it is not Communism, but the patriotism of the Chinese people. Unless, of course, we take into account the Fascism of the Japanese militarists.

China has no need, no desire, for Communism; all she wants is her independence, to keep intact her political and territorial integrity.

It is because of this and because Japan wishes to prevent it, that the present war is being fought. As soon as China succeeds in her aims and Japan abandons her efforts to dismember and conquer China, the day for the settlement of the Sino-Japanese problem will arrive.

The Comintern and the Soviet Union do not enter into the matter. For the Japanese to assert that China is dominated by the Communists merely because she has accepted aid from Soviet Russia is absurd.

CHINA has been receiving assistance—incidentally, not nearly as much as she has the right to demand—from all the peace-loving nations, while other countries, who are bitterly opposed to Communism, have been only too willing to provide her with armaments.

According to the argument put forward by the Japanese, that

CROWLEY BEATS WALSH

British Lightweight Championship

Liverpool, June 24.
Dave Crowley, weighing out at 9st. 5 lbs., won the British lightweight championship here last night outpointing the holder, Jimmy Walsh (9 st. 8 lbs.) in a 15 round contest.

Crowley indulged in a rousing two-handed attack and was full of action. Walsh was mainly defensive. He received a nasty gash to the left eye in the seventh round and, from then onwards, he was also striving with a right to Crowley's jaw.

A crowd of 6,000 watched the fight.—(Reuter).

Schmeling No Longer Claims Foul

New York, June 24.
Max Schmeling's injury, said to have been sustained during his fight with Joe Louis for the heavyweight title of the world, is less serious than was at first supposed, though rumours of his death spread like wildfire in New York and Berlin.

The latest bulletin stated that he was resting quietly, and his advisers no longer claim that he was fouled.

Joe Louis is sailing on July 6 for a holiday in England and France with his wife and manager, Julian Black, and is returning to America for the Louis-Ambers-Henry Armstrong fight for the Lightweight title on July 25.—(Reuter).

GOING HOME
New York, June 24.

Schmeling will sail for Germany on July 2. He will be taken to the steamer on a "stretcher" and upon arrival in Germany will undergo further treatment for his injury.—(Transocean).

China is Communist because she has been aided by Russia, then, at the same time, she must also be Nazi, as Germany has been the greatest supplier of arms and ammunition to China.

German advisers have also been most prominent in directing the resistance to the Japanese invaders.

Possibly the reason for Hitler's recent ill-conceived change of policy in regard to affairs in the Far East was the result of the Japanese pointing out that it was a bit too inconsistent to fight a China which was Communist and Nazi at one and the same time.

One thing is certain, however, and that is that no matter what trumped-up reasons Japan may produce as justification for invading China, the Chinese people will never cease fighting until the Japanese are forced to admit China's right to work out her own destiny.

to remove any trace from the booms at all. There was no trace or possible connection with himself in the booms. Up to that time no one had seen Dwyer. The Crown case was that he used the coat to bring a rifle up under cover. No one had seen him with a coat before. There is no evidence that Dwyer must have known, and realised that the coat could possibly be incriminating.

"If he removed the coat, it must be for the purpose of getting rid of it. But what did he do? All he did was to go down into the recreation space openly wearing the olskin and carrying the coat. There was no question of hiding it. He leaves it there by throwing it on a space.

"Can you suggest that in these circumstances, he must have had a guilty mind? There was no name on the coat and there was no evidence that he ever had an overcoat.

"If he had taken the coat to cover a rifle, would it not have occurred to him that he was perfectly safe in leaving the coat in the fan cover because it could not be traced back to him? For the fact that it was an overcoat and not an olskin is a matter in his favour.

"No one carefully planning a crime of this kind would not have realised that the fact of a man having an overcoat rather than an olskin in temperature of that kind might possibly give rise to suspicion.

"We have evidence that the olskin is longer than an overcoat and that it is opaque. A rifle could not be seen through it.

TESTING CROWN EVIDENCE
The proper way to test the evidence of the Crown is this. You must ask yourselves this question. Is any bit of this evidence, the threats, ammunition, and so on, consistent with any other reasonable hypothesis? Not that you must require a reasonable explanation, but if a reasonable explanation occurred to you yourselves, it is sufficient. If the evidence is equally consistent with guilty and any other hypothesis, then the Crown will have failed to prove its case. Apply this test.

"You have from Dwyer's own statement that he went down to get a coat because it had started to rain. Later that morning he found out that the person whom he was going to relieve was in possession of an olskin. When Dwyer got this coat, he placed it in the fan cover which was on the way up to the deck where he was going on duty. He placed it there in order to get it later. Before doing tricks, he realised that he would have at his disposal an olskin. That garment was preferable to an overcoat in the circumstances.

"Is that an irrational hypothesis? Are the facts only consistent with guilt? You can come to no other conclusion than this that it is consistent with the evidence. The very removal of the coat is not only consistent with guilt but is very much more consistent with innocence when you consider that there was nothing in that coat by which it could be traced to Dwyer.

"There may be evidence which may satisfy you of the identification of this coat. If the question which you are asked to supply failed the test, it leaves only an element of suspicion which is not enough to find Dwyer guilty.

"The last one is Dwyer's subsequent conduct. The first suggestion is that Dwyer attempted to provide himself with an alibi.

"There was the mention of the Chinese in his statement he made, first to Smout and then to the Commander, amounts to this. A plain statement of facts that he saw White and a Chinese.

"It was curious that of the large number of Chinese on the ship who would use the heads, no one admitted having gone there that night. They may not have known that something was amiss. The fact that Dwyer failed to pick out anyone and that the Chinese did not go to the heads should not in any sense weigh against him.

ALIBI NOT DWYER'S
The importance of this evidence has been too much stressed by the Crown. It was the Crown itself that first suggested this alibi. The prosecution said that Dwyer's object in picking out a Chinese must be to establish an alibi.

"From the very wording of the questions put to Dwyer at the inquiry, it was obvious that he did not attach much importance to the Chinese. You see, gentlemen, it was not Dwyer who was treating the Chinese as an alibi. The idea appeared to have occurred to the Board at the time. If he had done so and failed, obviously that would have been against him.

"Dwyer, if his story as alleged by the prosecution is true, first learned of the shooting from Murphy a little after 2 a.m. He subsequently expressed complete surprise at hearing it. My and has said that was hypocrisy. Remember these points, gentlemen, ignorance and wrong information as to where the overcoat was placed.

"The Crown suggests then that if he were innocent why should he express surprise and ignorance of the offence having already heard of it? Is not this a reasonable explanation? Dwyer, a man of intelligence, having heard the news that Dickinson had been shot, thinks of it, ponders the event, comes to the conclusion, which has proved to be too right, that he might well be suspected because he had made threats.

"FEIGN IGNORANCE"
In these circumstances, gentlemen, is it an unreasonable explanation that he, because of his previous threats, and fear of being suspected, might feign ignorance of the event in order to avoid suspicion or else make a deliberate false statement in regard to the overcoat for similar reasons because his statement in regard to the overcoat was not made until the inquiry?

"Is that an explanation which your commonsense cannot accept? You must realise the state of affairs aboard the ship. In that predicament and faced with the possibility of suspicion of this charge, he might have made a false statement and pretended ignorance of the whole affair.

"I defy you to say that is an irrational explanation or hypothesis. If the explanation is consistent equally with the fact of the position and not only consistent with guilt, the point in the evidence goes and you reach this position, that that part of the evidence is not such to warrant you saying that it must point, and point only, to the guilt of the accused.

"Justice requires this, that the greater the crime is for which a man is being tried, the greater is the element of proof required. Dwyer is being tried for his life, and you cannot on this evidence, find him guilty."

THE SUMMING UP
In his summing up His Lordship said: "You have listened in these last four days to the most distressing and sordid case, a case which I imagine was not paralleled, at any rate within recent years, in the history of the Royal Navy."

"That leading Seaman Dickinson was murdered that night on the Dorsetshire we cannot, I think, doubt. I suggest to you he was shot by a high velocity bullet fired from a service rifle and that it was fired in circumstances which make no question of self-defence or provocation which might reduce the crime to manslaughter. My duty is to direct you that if you are satisfied that it was the accused deliberately and intentionally fired that shot, that though you may feel there is evidence, which you may well believe, that Dickinson had previously attempted to seduce and bully the accused, this cannot help him. Even though Dickinson may have been a wolf in sheep's clothing, the law does not recognise any such excuse.

SIMPLE BUT NOT EASY
The issue before you then is a simple, though not an easy one. Was that fatal shot fired by a person with deliberate intention to kill; or was it not? If you are satisfied that that shot was so fired then obviously you must find the prisoner guilty. If not, naturally not guilty.

"The onus of proving that that shot was so fired was entirely on the Crown. One of the presumptions of our criminal law is the presumption of innocence—that no man is guilty of an offence with which he is charged until he is proved guilty.

MR. JUSTICE LINDSELL'S SUMMING-UP

"The Crown in rebutting that presumption is entitled to use not only direct evidence from its own witnesses but also to rely if it can on statements made by the accused which it can prove false.

"Coming to the first point of motive and intention, the evidence on both these points was given in the main by the same witnesses and it is not therefore easy to separate them. In the case of murder the Crown is not in need of a motive. If the circumstances of the killing admit any explanation other than murder then motive and intention are presumed in law, but if it is proved, motive is stronger evidence of what is called malice aforethought; that is to say, deliberate and wicked intention to kill. It is the essential ingredient of the crime.

"The Crown here relies on two motives, fear and hate. The fear relies in the main on the evidence of Humphreys. You saw and heard him in the witness box, especially under cross-examination, and you probably felt that he was an unreliable witness. The defence asks you in view of the many contradictions and discrepancies which appeared in his evidence under cross-examination utterly to discredit him.

"I suggest to you, however, that many of his equivocations may have been due to a desire to attempt to exculpate himself in respect of that disgraceful episode in Singapore, and in spite of these contradictions, it is possible that the main feature of his story was true. These main features being (1) that he and a prisoner did go together to the 'boys' locker that night, and for what other purpose, could they have gone there other than for a sexual act, in which possibly the prisoner was willing to take an active if not a passive part;

(2) They were caught there by Dickinson who said either to prisoner or to both of them: 'I have got you where I want you now.' In this connection you must remember that prisoner in answer to the questions of the Board of Enquiry admitted in almost as many words that Dickinson had made improper suggestions to him and being rebuffed had retaliated by bullying and insults.

MOTIVES

"This evidence is put before you to establish motives, and motives alone. It is no inference and can be no inference. In English law, that because a man may be found to be guilty of one crime, therefore, he is more likely to have committed another. It is not part of the Crown's case, that because prisoner may have been guilty of sexual acts in Singapore he is more likely to have committed the crime with which he is charged today. That evidence is brought, and is corroborated to a certain extent by prisoner's own statement before the Board of Inquiry, to show that he had a motive for fearing and hating deceased.

"Gentlemen, if you believe the main outline of Humphreys' story then the motive of fear, coupled with hatred is established. You remember the Commander's evidence that homo-sexuality in a candidate for ward-room promotion would be fatal to his chances and that prisoner was under consideration for such promotion. There is also evidence that prisoner spoke with Leading Seaman Bye about such promotion.

"In Singapore that motive of fear was present, but I suggest to you it was possible that as time passed and prisoner found that he was not reported in connection with this act with Humphreys, it may well be that that motive disappeared and was succeeded by one of hate, pure and simple. There is no evidence of any expressions of hatred used by the prisoner towards or about Dickinson between Singapore and Sydney.

"FEAR MOTIVE DISAPPEARS"

"The defence has suggested, in connection with motive, that as Dickinson himself cannot well have reported the incident, if Humphreys' story is to be believed, the motive of fear disappears. It is quite clear that motive must be a mixed one, and dictated not only by the efforts of Dickinson, to which prisoner himself has spoken, to seduce him but also by Dickinson bearing down and putting it on him. You remember, as regards Singapore, Harris' evidence in connection with an incident when prisoner had been deputed threat of some kind."

to do deckwashing, a job for which under ordinary circumstances only Ordinary seamen or boys would have been engaged. Prisoner complained of having been given that dirty job by Dickinson and said he was going to get him for it. I suggest that statement shows dislike or hatred rather than fear. Also in Singapore, prisoner said Dickinson was bearing down on him and 'I will get the b...'. I have said already there is no evidence of any such threats or statements of dislike or complaints of bearing down during the time between Singapore and Sydney, but at Sydney you have more than one.

Here His Lordship detailed the various incidents to which witnesses had testified. That evidence showed, he said, that prisoner hated Dickinson, wished him ill and toyed with the idea of murdering him.

"The defence," His Lordship continued, not unnaturally made the point that anyone seriously intending to commit murder would not have blazoned that intention aboard. You must give this point the utmost attention.

"The Crown's case is that this was a most calculated crime which the murderer must have thought out in detail. How then is it likely that he would have gone out of his way to describe to his shipmates his desire to murder—not only his desire but to point out the very spot from which he was going to do it?

"You remember that Morris, in connection with the conversation with prisoner in the hotel in Sydney, told us that prisoner said he had two rounds of ammunition, and that it was his intention to kill Dickinson—one round for Dickinson and one round for himself. Is it possible that prisoner's intention to kill Dickinson was accompanied, at that time at any rate, by the intention that if it came to murder, to kill himself also, and when it did come to murder his nerve failed?

MURDERER'S MENTALITY

"Murder is such a terrible matter, so utterly contradictory to normal human instincts that it can be said that no murderer is truly sane. It therefore becomes difficult to apply the ordinary canons of logic in considering such cases. I am not suggesting for one moment that you might find accused committed this murder but was insane when he did it. There can be no question of insanity here. What I suggest is that the mentality of a murderer is so abnormal in its recklessness and egotism as to disregard common-sense."

His Lordship went on to say that it was strange that accused should have gone out of his way to declare his intention.

It was not established that accused was the only person on board who hated Dickinson. Several others had spoken of his unpopularity. Wood had said on account of Dickinson's unpopularity he would not have been surprised to hear others uttering such threats.

"I pass on now to the question of means, whereof, as Mr. D'Almeida describes it, there is no doubt whatever that Dickinson was shot from a 303 bullet from a service rifle. It is not challenged that prisoner himself admitted to Regan that he had three rounds and to Morris that he had two rounds of service ammunition. It is not challenged that prisoner belonged to the ship's rifle club, the members of which, including accused, were several times, on the ranges between Singapore and Sydney. It was quite possible for any member on the range to obtain a few rounds of ammunition and take it away.

"There is also the evidence of the Master-at-Arms that in prisoner's locker were found two live rounds of service ammunition such as may have been issued for use on the range at Singapore. It is not challenged again that prisoner was at any rate a fair shot.

"As to weapon, we know from Master Gunner Paul that on that night some of the ship's service rifles were in unlocked racks and in particular rack 240. One rifle from that rack was missing on May 2.

"There is also evidence that prisoner was up and about.

OPPORTUNITY

Further, His Lordship went on: "We come now to consider how far, as described by evidence, prisoner had the opportunity of firing the shot which killed Dickinson. The first point is that at the time of the murder both Dickinson and prisoner were members of the watch on middle watch. It was the first time after Sydney that that part of the watch was on night watch.

"You remember prisoner's statement at Sydney as regards first opportunity. It is common ground again that in the next 14 hours from midnight prisoner was up and about the whole time. At any rate he did not lie down and go to sleep and his own evidence tells you what he did himself during that period. I will read you once again his own answer to the Board of Enquiry as to what he did during that period."

Here His Lordship read out Dwyer's statement.

"The statement gives you prisoner's own version of what he did between 12 and 1.30. He was not, of course, asked to detail every movement."

His Lordship then compared those movements with the evidence in that connection given by witnesses for the Crown.

Continuing: "It thus emerges that from 1.20 to 1.33, a period of about ten minutes, prisoner was not seen in the immediate vicinity of the crime, and his own evidence to the Board is not corroborated in any respect. At the same time you must remember that there is no direct evidence that he was, when the shot was fired, anywhere in the vicinity at all. He himself says he was then sitting on the starboard boulders."

"The evidence is unchallenged, as I say, that, for at least ten minutes during that crucial period he was not seen by anyone. You have his own admission that the only person whom he himself claims to have seen was that Chinese whom he half-heartedly identified at the parade and who in the box denied he went to the heads."

Continuing the question of opportunity His Lordship said, that the opportunity open to prisoner was open to 650 other souls on board, and if the evidence went no further than that he thought the jury could not well be satisfied that the case had been brought home to prisoner.

"The Crown case does not rest there. I go further. It attempts to prove not only the spot from which the shot must have been fired but also that prisoner was in the vicinity of that spot at the time. It is obvious from the position of the booms that that shot must have come from above and aft where Dickinson was lying."

FLIGHT OF BULLET

"Lt. Norworthy's evidence as to the flight of the bullet was perhaps difficult to follow. His method of calculation was not challenged though he appeared to have made a mistake the first time. Counsel for the defence has not today attempted to convince you that the shot was fired from any position other than the booms."

"Lt. Norworthy tells you that following the line back from the hole in the head the shot could only have come from that spot on the booms which you saw. He also tells you that to make it possible that that bullet could have come from the galley his calculation must have been out by a minimum of eight inches fore and aft and four inches up and down."

"It was suggested that owing to the faintness of the report as heard by Nicholson it might have come from inside the galley. Nicholson did, however, modify that position in answer to me, that it might have made a difference if the end of the rifle had been under a camp awning. If that shot had been fired from the booms it seems more than likely that the end of the rifle was under the awning which you noticed there. I think you must be satisfied that the booms was the spot from which the shot was fired. No other conclusion is possible."

"It remains to consider what circumstantial evidence connects prisoner with these booms. In this respect the Crown relies on the overcoat, the most important part of that evidence. About 1.20 when prisoner left the galley flat he was in tropical rig. He himself admits at the Board of Enquiry that shortly after one o'clock he had fetched his coat from his locker flat."

"We have the evidence of Bye, who went along the booms about 1.45, 12 or 15 minutes after the murder, who saw what he took to be an overcoat on the ventilator on the starboard side on the signals store, and seeing what he took to be the same coat there on his return along the booms very soon after."

"Matthias, who was along the booms about 1.130, said he saw other clothing there but no coat. He was on the booms again at 1.55 looking for a weapon and he now found a coat and examined it. He told you it had no name and the loop at the back was missing and some buttons were missing. He also found a muffler with a fringe at one end missing."

"He identifies that coat as the coat brought to him some days later and that is the coat in court. He has told you in general that the coats on board are named and that in examining other coats on the ship he came across only two others without names."

NO EXPLANATION

Further on His Lordship said: There is no explanation of how that coat has been used. Prisoner's account of his movements make no mention of it.

"You must consider whether it is not a likely inference, as the Crown suggests, that that overcoat was procured in the first instance to enable the smuggling of a rifle and when the murderer fired this shot and realised that many persons on board must be aroused by it, in his hurry to escape he must have forgotten that coat and with many people about for the next half hour he had no opportunity to recover it."

"The defence again counters with this question, as to whether a murderer of such intelligence as this crime would seem to have demanded would have attempted to remove the coat at 4 a.m. This is a cogent question. There was nothing in it to indicate the owner, nothing to incriminate him."

"Might it have not been possible that seeing it there prisoner imagined that no suspicion attached to it, and thought he might as well recover his property? If prisoner did not take it up there why did he tell the court he put it on the fan cover? Commander Garnon-Williams has told you there is no fan cover at the spot prisoner said."

"If you can answer this question in only one way—the way the Crown ask you to, then I suggest you have strong evidence connecting prisoner with this crime."

"One other point on which the Crown relies is the evidence of Able Seaman Nicholson as to the indication of surprise given by prisoner when hearing for the second time of the murder. The defence has made a plausible suggestion in connection with that defence. I do not think that takes you very far—the whole of that evidence, I mean."

"That is all I have to say to you in respect of evidence. It is for you to say whether that evidence has satisfied you beyond all reasonable doubt that that fatal shot was fired by the prisoner with the intention to kill."

"In murder it is seldom that the crime can be proved with complete and entire certainty. There are very few eye-witnesses in cases of murder."

"The law does not require such complete and entire certainty as that but it does require that each one of you—your verdict must be unanimous, be convinced, before you can convict, that the circumstances admit of no other reasonable or possible explanation than guilt; that if, that you should arrive at your decision with such certainty as you would arrive in matters of great consequence in the conduct of your everyday affairs."

"If on the whole of the evidence you are not convinced of that degree of certainty which I have defined, you will then find prisoner not guilty."

"If after considering and weighing up the whole of the evidence you find yourself entertaining reasonable doubts—I don't mean fanciful doubts, but honest doubts—such as will make you hesitate, in the conduct of your own affairs, then again prisoner is entitled to that doubt and you will find him not guilty."

"Please now consider your verdict."

BASEBALL LEAGUE MEETING

A meeting of the Hong Kong Baseball League Committee was held at the Brook Club yesterday, commencing at 5.30 p.m.

The members present were Mr. W. Muir (Chairman), Mr. F. J. Molthen (Hong Kong Baseball Club), Mr. W. A. Smith (Secretary-Treasurer), Mr. C. Guinness (H.K. Volunteers), Mr. E. Lau (Chinese Baseball Club), and Mr. W. Mendonca (Recrelo).

It was decided to hold an international series, which will commence as soon as the League is completed. The five teams entered are U.S.A., China, India, Portugal, and the Philippines. Each team will pay the other team once.

Baseball games scheduled for the week-end are:—

Saturday, 2.15 p.m.: Chinese v. Recrelo.
Sunday, 9.30 a.m.: Recrelo v. Volunteers.

JAPANESE REVERSES IN SHANSI

Kianghsien, Shansi, June 24. More than seventy Japanese were killed and a score of horses captured by Chinese troops during a surprise raid which routed a detachment of about 300 Japanese, equipped with three armoured cars, when going from Siao westward for Chaokiatun on June 19.

Repeated attempts by Japanese forces cornered within the gates of Sinkiang in South Shansi to break through the Chinese siege on June 21, were again frustrated by the vigilance of Chinese forces.

Opening a desperate attack, the Japanese tried hard to rush the Chinese positions, but were repulsed with heavy losses.

At the same time, another Japanese unit launched a determined assault on the Chinese positions at Chowchwang to the west of the town. Following a brief exchange of fire the Japanese were forced back to their original posts. —(Central News).

Wimbledon Surprises MITIC DEFEATED

London, June 24.

The first surprise in the Wimbledon tennis championships was caused today in the fourth round of the men's singles when the Yugoslav, Mitic, sixth seeded player, was defeated by Max Ellner, the Swiss Davis Cupper.

Ellner won by the scores of 3-6, 6-2, 7-5, 1-6, 6-2. In the same round, Funnec defeated J. S. Olliff in three straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-0.

H. W. Austin beat J. S. Comery, a young Birmingham player, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3.

WOMEN'S SINGLES (Third Round)

Mrs. Helne Miller beat Miss Knight 6-0, 6-2.
MacGee Spering beat Miss Thelma Coyne 6-4, 6-2.

There was also a surprising result in the second round of the mixed doubles, when Anderson (America) and Miss Jarvis (Britain) defeated Kho Sin-ke (China) and Miss Kay Stammers (Britain) 6-2, 5-7, 9-7.

Hughan (Holland) and Miss Gem Hoahing (China) beat Ian Collins and Lady Rowallan (Scotland) 6-2, 7-5.

Miss Hoahing gave a fine all-round display and was so accurate that her opponents made every effort to steer the ball clear of her. —(Reuter).

THE WEATHER

The highest temperature recorded yesterday—91 degs. F., made Hong Kong sweeter in the shade. It was two degrees hotter than the previous day when a maximum of 89 degs. F. was registered.

Lowest temperature of the day was 82 degs. as against 81 degs. on the previous day.

France Will Not Tolerate Occupation Of Hainan

Paris, June 24. Should Japan violate the Franco-Japanese Agreement of 1907 and attempt to occupy Hainan Island, France would be compelled to intervene.

This dramatic announcement was made by a spokesman of the Foreign Ministry yesterday, who stated that the island came within the treaty.

Regarding plans for the construction of a second railway from north Indo-China to China proper, the spokesman stated that the project would in no way alter the existing situation.

If France so desired, he said, she could supply China with munitions by means of the existing railway. —(Transocean).

STIFF ATTITUDE URGED

Hankow, June 24. Great Britain and France are advised editorially by the Ta Kung Pao to display a stern attitude in the Far East now in view of Japan's recent threat to extend the sphere of hostilities to South China, which has already been witnessed in her occupation of Nansha Island and the extensive aerial and naval bombardment of Hainan Island.

Japan tries to stop foreign military supplies to China and threaten to refuse protection for foreign properties allegedly used by Chinese soldiers. Such actions, the journal says, are both unwarranted and unjustifiable according to international law.

In the first place, there has been no formal declaration of war between China and Japan. Secondly, Japan is invading China in violation of international treaties and, thirdly, foreign interests are endangered by the war.

BRITISH INTERESTS

As far as Great Britain is concerned, the journal warns that she should not yield any more in the face of Japanese advances, as she has already given up too much of her interests in Manchuria, North China and the Yangtze Valley.

Now Japan is threatening Canton. Should Britain continue to give in, she will be forced to withdraw all her interests from the Far East, the journal remarks.

The journal criticises the French Government's attitude as weak-kneed, although French public opinion is incensed regarding Japan's accusation regarding supply of arms to China. If France fails to establish a resolute stand, she may not be able to protect her interests in South China or even in French Indo-China, the paper states. —(Central News).

FUNERAL OF MRS. M.K. MORE

The funeral of the late Mrs. Martha K. More took place at Happy Valley yesterday evening and was largely attended.

Predeceased by her husband, the late Mr. Andrew C. More, of Messrs. Jardine Matheson and the Hong Kong Sugar Refinery, the deceased had been in failing health for some time.

She leaves two children, Phyllis, the wife of Mrs. K.S. Morrison, and Mr. Geoffrey Robert More, late of the Union Insurance of Canton and at present in South Africa.

On Wednesday at 9.30 p.m. H.E. the Governor will roll the first ball at the opening of the Hong Kong Bowling Alleys, Lockhart Road.

SLOW MOTION FILM OF FIGHT

New York, June 24. A slow motion film shows very clearly that Schmelling was already on the way to a knockout before Louis landed the decisive rights to the kidney. Louis had the German groggy with twenty-one blows to the head and body before the kidney blows.

The consensus of opinion of experts watching the film was that Schmelling probably suffered a spinal injury when falling clumsily the first time. —(Reuter).

On Monday, Lady Northcott will be host to tea to Girl Guides at Sandlands Hut at 4 p.m.

WIMBLEDON

Kho Again Shows Great Prowess

London, June 24.

The following are further results in yesterday's tennis matches at Wimbledon:—

MEN'S SINGLES

(Third Round)

Kho Sin-tie (China) beat I. G. Collins (Britain) 8-10, 6-2, 8-6, 6-2.
Kho Sin-tie took a long time in settling down, and he trailed 1-4 in the first set. Then, as a result of powerful driving he recovered to lead 6-5, but Collins speeded up and as a result of accurate placements won the set in the 18th game.
Kho's rhythmic driving from the baseline won him the second set, but Collins led 3-1 in the third set and two-love in the fourth, only to see Kho rally on both occasions.
D. Budge (U.S.) beat G. Lyttleton Rogers (Ireland) 6-0, 7-5, 6-1.
J. S. Olliff (Britain) beat F. Gopfert (Germany) 6-2, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

WOMEN'S SINGLES

(Second Round)

Mme. Mathieu (France) beat Miss Curtis 6-0, 6-3.
Miss Mary Hardwick (Britain) beat Mrs. McKelvie (nee Miss McOstrich) 6-3, 6-3.

MIXED DOUBLES

(First Round)

D. Budge and Miss Alice Marble (U.S.) beat D. McPhail and Mrs. Phyllis Maudford King (Britain) 6-0, 6-0.

(Second Round)

R. A. Shuyes and Miss Joan Saunders (Britain) beat G. Makb (U.S.) and Mile. Jedzewska (Poland) 6-3, 6-4.

BASEBALL CHATTER

BY PILAT

All baseball fans could not be satisfied with the brand of ball games that was served up during last week-end. All matches were closely contested and thrills and excitement were not lacking. A feature of last week's games was the return to form of the Indians who, after a very promising start, were badly trounced in their last two matches.

On Saturday last the Indians defeated the H.K. Baseball Club by 8 runs to 2 in one of the most interesting games seen this season. Unfortunately, the game was marred by a very regrettable incident. It seemed that two players were engaged in a dispute which culminated in one player striking the other.

The Club, as usual, started grandly and chalked up two runs in the first stanza. But thereafter they were blanked for the rest of the game. The holding of both teams was very good, particularly the Indians' outfielders, who brought off a number of magnificent catches.

FINE FIGHT

On Sunday the H.K. Club forfeited their game to the Volunteers owing to some of their men not turning up. A scratch match was played in which the Volunteers emerged winners with the fine tally of 14-3 runs.

Contrary to all expectations, the Indians put up such a good fight on Sunday that at one stage they were considered to have a very good chance of lowering the colours of the Chinese for the second time this season.

As it was the Chinese only just managed to nose out the Indians by the narrow margin of one run. Both teams played air-tight baseball and the issue was always open till the very last innings. Probably the turning point of the game was when Tuffy Chinn romped home after a mighty clout to centre field.

ARCUILL'S FEAT

M. el Arcuill, on the mound for the Indians, pitched a grand game, allowing the Chinese only three hits, and considering that he pitched the whole game the previous day it was a very good performance indeed.

The Chinese, with a percentage of 375, are sitting pretty and the pennant is as good as theirs. However, the runners-up position has reached a very interesting stage with the Mindanao, Volunteers and Recreio all having a say. The H.K. Club, with only a single victory, is sure of the cellar position.

In view of the numerous changes made every week it is hard to announce with any certainty the matches down for decision this week-end. However, baseball fans will be provided with some good

COLONIALS' GOLF SUCCESSES

London, June 24.

Mr. C. J. Guthrie of Nigeria today won the Lucifer Golfing Society's tournament at Walton Heath by nine up. His handicap was 10.

Mr. E. Bagot of Malaya (handicap 5) was joint fourth with three others, by one up.—(Reuter).

Frames, Strikes And Spares

Frames, strikes, spares and breaks, mystic language of the game of alley bowls, will be common talk in the Colony next week when the Hong Kong Bowling Alleys will be opened.

The opening ceremony will be performed on Wednesday at 9.30 p.m. when His Excellency the Governor, Sir Geoffrey Northcote, will roll the first ball.

Situated just behind the China Fleet Club, the alleys are ideally sited as they are within easy reach of the business section as well as being perfectly placed as regards the Services.

The building which houses the alleys has been specially constructed of bricks covered with a yellow plaster; the doors, windows and other woodwork being a bright red forming a pleasing appearance, and a large Neon light sign bearing the name of the enterprise stands out prominently above the main entrance.

COMFORTABLE CHAIRS

On entering the building, the first thing to catch the eye is a large space, well illuminated and ventilated by overhead fans, devoted to seating accommodation consisting of plain teakwood tables with comfortable rattan basket chairs—on one side of this space is a semicircular bar and a small kitchen and pantry from which will be dispensed beer and other malt drinks—hot dogs, sandwiches and similar small snacks.

Tea and coffee will also be obtainable and it is anticipated there will be a good demand for these during the mornings when the alleys are to be open to ladies only. Similarly the alleys will be reserved for men only from 1 p.m. onwards. On the opposite side, is an identical semicircular counter which houses the bar and on which cigarettes and chocolates will be displayed. Lavatory accommodation is also provided on this side.

AMERICAN PATTERN

Beyond the tables is a milline and then come the alleys, which have been especially imported from Manila. These alleys are the standard American pattern and in action to the favourite ten pins played with the big 27 inch ball with three finger holes, there will be available the duck pin and candle pin games which are played with a smaller ball.

A game which consists of ten frames should take two average players about 15 minutes, and the charge will be 40 cents each for civilians and 25 cents for servicemen.

The syndicate is expecting to promote a league in which teams will consist of five players, and already great enthusiasm is being displayed by the various American and other business concerns.

On the opening night, there will be a competition between six teams representing the National City Bank Chase Bank, Dollar S.S. Co. Standard Oil, Hong Kong Club and The Bankers. This competition will take place after His Excellency has rolled the first ball.

Two other alleys will be reserved for other guests who may wish to try their skill, and a thoroughly enjoyable evening is anticipated.

SOVIET SOCCER TEAM TO VISIT CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Prague, June 24.

It is announced that arrangements have been made to hold an international football match between Soviet Russia and Czechoslovakia as part of the programme of the 10th Sokol congress to be held in the first half of July.

This will be the first appearance of Soviet sportsmen outside their own country.—(Transocean).

YESTERDAY'S OFFICIAL QUOTATIONS

As noted in the last few days' reports, the market has been fairly active and on balance there is a slight appreciation in prices in favour of holders. For the time being buyers are probably satisfied, pending a period of digestion. Sellers, in view of the recent rise, may pursue a patient policy and refuse to offer shares again become more in evidence. Closing tone, quiet, but steady.

Professor J. T. Macgregor-Morris, head of the department of Electrical Engineering at Queen Mary
 College (University of London), whose retirement at the end of the academic year is announced, played a notable part during the war in the invention of an instrument by which enemy submarines could be detected and located, says
 The Bulletin.

Working with Mr. A. F. Sykes, then a research student, Professor Macgregor-Morris began a series of experiments, using two headphones first with a pall of water then with a sink, later with a large tank, and a few months afterwards

WARNING GIVEN LEAGUE OF OPIUM MENACE

SITUATION EXTREMELY GRAVE IN PARTS OF CHINA UNDER JAPANESE INFLUENCE

Geneva, June 24.
 The Opium Advisory Committee of the League of Nations, which has been in session for several days, yesterday passed a resolution drawing the attention of the League Council to the seriousness of the situation in the narcotics trade in the Far East, as revealed by the session's debates, and requesting the Council to take the most energetic measures to remedy the situation.

sent down many short ones but when lunch was taken with the score at 134 for 3, his figures were 10-1-31-3, including six no-balls.

KING'S VISIT

His Majesty the King paid a surprise visit to Headquarters after the luncheon interval and before the match was resumed. The players were presented to His Majesty in front of the Pavilion. The batsmen were now on top and Paynter hooked a no-ball from O'Reilly to the boundary to reach his 50 in 115 minutes. Incidentally a new fourth wicket partnership record against Australia beating the 151 set up by C. B. Fry and F. S. Jackson in 1905.

HAMMOND'S CENTURY

The wicket which had sweated earlier was now playing very true. Hammond gave a masterly display to reach his 100 in 145 minutes—his tenth this season and third in succession. He was cutting and driving grandly and heavily punished Fleetwood-Smith who sent down too many full tosses, all of which were smashed to the boundary. Paynter laboured in the nineties and then, when only one short of the magical three-figures, was tragically leg-before to O'Reilly. He had batted 185 minutes during which time he hit a six and 13 fours—253 for 4. Inspired by his success O'Reilly kept a beautiful length and varied his pace cleverly. He met with further success when he got Dennis Compton out by the l.b.w. route for 8. The batsman, attempting a big hit to the leg, missed the ball and was given marching orders.

Leslie Ames joined Hammond and at tea the score was 283 for 5—Hammond 139, Ames 4, both not out.

FLOOD WATERS ENTER SHA RIVER

Hankow, June 24.
 Sweeping ever onwards the Yellow flood waters are flowing into the Sha River, according to Chinese reports.

The flood waters are said to have entered the Sha River near Sihwa and Hwaiyang within a radius of about 20 miles northwest of Chouchiakou. They are stated to be heading southeast in the direction of Fuyang.

It is understood that Kwaiyang has been badly damaged by the floods.—(Reuter).

CHINA EMPORIUM ANNUAL REPORT

Over $200,000 Profit

The report of the Directors of the China Emporium, Limited, to be presented at the sixth ordinary yearly meeting of the Company to be held at the Company's Registered Office Nos. 62A-68, Queen's Road Central, on Monday at 4 p.m. states that the profit for the period under review amounts to $202,381.89 to which has to be added the sum of $9,273.14 brought forward from last year making a total sum of $211,655.03.

The Committee recalls the resolution adopted last year which declared the situation in China showed that the efforts of the Chinese Government had brought improvement, whereas the situation in the regions under Japanese influence had deteriorated to an alarming extent, constituting a situation of very real danger to the peoples of these regions and also to the whole world.

STRONG OBJECTIONS

When the meeting opened yesterday, the President submitted a draft resolution summarising in moderate words the Committee's discussions. The delegates of the United States, Canada and India strongly objected.

Mr. Buller (U.S.) maintained that the draft resolution misquoted the tenor of his statements and insisted on a resolution to stress that the China situation had grown worse.

Mr. Sherman (Canada) pointed out that the draft resolution was milder than last year's when the situation was already grave.

CRITICISM OF JAPAN

The Indian delegate, Mr. Nind, said that Japan had given no signs of clearing up the situation which, while grave last year, was much more grave this year.

He observed that the Japanese delegate had not refuted criticisms but only repeated promises of action and collaboration. He insisted on a resolution to express the Committee's dissatisfaction.

Russell Pasha declared that no resolution was better than a weak one. The meeting thereupon agreed to a stronger resolution.—(Reuter).

Mr. A. P. Blunt, C.M.G., British Consul-General of Canton, arrived in the Colony yesterday and is staying at Government House as guest of His Excellency the Governor until Monday, when he returns to Canton.

Kwangtung Governor Addresses Model Corps

Canton, June 24.
 With their period of intensive military training drawing quickly to a close, the Canton Model Corps was inspected by General Wu Te-chen, Chairman of Kwangtung, today.

Addressing the gathering, General Wu pointed out that during the present war against Japan, the entire Chinese people are in duty bound to pool their strength together for the supreme struggle under the principle, one government and one leader.

It is not only the armed services of the country, General Wu said, that should quickly be mobilized to resist aggression, but every single member should contribute his or her bit to the service of the nation.

Due to the hearty co-operation between the Government and the people, China has shown no signs of strain despite nearly a full year's war against Japan. General Wu said, it is true a number of cities have fallen into Japanese hands, but this would not adversely affect the future of the war.

With her vast territorial possessions, General Wu declared, China will secure final victory by fighting on in undaunted spirit and with uncompromising perseverance.

General Wu in conclusion said he placed great hope on the Model Corps and admonished the members to pledge their entire energy to the service of their country.—(Central News)
